PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

Video producer, editor and multimedia professional with more than 30 years of experience adapting professional media production to changing technology, distribution and client expectations. My career began in broadcast television and progressed through commercial and corporate production, independent production, Internet video, early social media and high-frequency digital content. I have worked on both sides of production—creating the finished communication while also managing the equipment, systems, people and workflows required to produce it.

More than seven years of my professional career involved video production for Houston Methodist Hospital System through Reel Connection Media, initially as a Reel Connection Media employee and later as a 1099 production professional working through the company. That work extended across Houston Methodist's 12-campus network and included operating-room production, physician and department features, hospital events, Find a Doc website content and virtual department tours created for resident recruitment during the COVID shutdown.

My digital marketing experience also includes high-frequency content production at DFS Marketing, where I produced approximately three pieces of content per day while supporting the company's broader digital operation. Together, these experiences provide both the production depth required to work professionally in a clinical environment and the speed required by today's continuous-content model.

The underlying skill throughout that evolution has remained consistent: understand what the communication needs to accomplish, determine what needs to be captured or created, and deliver the finished material at the quality and speed the situation requires.
